Reporting planning sheet

This guide will remind you of the roles you should be thinking about and help you begin to plan and structure questions and possible answers for your feature report.

- Discuss your ideas together, then note down your ideas in the boxes. You don't need to choose who will be who until you are ready to practise your feature report.
- Once you have some ideas, think about the running order and who will be speaking when. Add in some timings and then practise, practise, practise.
