Can you use the internet to work out which of the statements below are true? If they are false, what is the correct fact?

Below are some things to consider when doing the activity.

Searching success – how to get reliable information

- Try to be really specific about what you are searching for to get accurate results.

- There are two types of search result: those that are automated (produced by your search engine) and those that are sponsored. 'Sponsored results' or 'ads' are there because a company has paid for them to appear so that they can publicise their product or service.

- Selecting a UK-only search will mean results are likely to be from UK sites following UK law.

- Check your spelling when searching as even a small mistake can return different results.

- When finding information on social media platforms, verify the information that you find by checking another source too.

- Make sure a trusted adult is nearby in case you find anything you are worried about.

- Given a choice, pick a website that looks official over something you have never heard of.

- If something you find online seems too good to be true, weird, or doesn't make sense, it may be unreliable! There are often clues when we can't trust something online, so stay alert and look closely to see if things match up.
